ANCIENT KINGDOM WILL BE PARTITIONED

Servia Is to Be Divided Between Russia and

BY LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY. RE many months are past Emperor Nicholas and his cousin, King George, will be compelled, nolens volens, to divide between them the ancient kingdom of Persia, and there is no doubt that this eventuality formed the subject of discussion between them on the occasion of their recent meeting in Berlin, at the wedding of the Kaiser's daughter. Conditions in Persia have reached such a pass that immediate intervention is

Office. When Sir Walter was living in this country, as councillor of the embassy at Washington, it was his clever wife, Lady Susan, a sister of Sir Derck and George Keppel, who was credited with all the literary abilities of the family, her pen being as point-as a wonderfully able writer. More than that—as an historian. In fact, his report might be described as "the Decline and Fall of the Persian Empire," were it not for the fact that whereas Gibbons's monumental work on the fall of the Roman Empire. is contained in six volumes, Sir Walter manages to give an almost equally impression of the utter hopelessness of the situation in Persia. The child Shah, the absentee regent (who was at Oxford with Sir Edward Grey), the helpless and dishonest Cabinet, which resigns once a week, and to whom, in the words of Sir Walter, "corruption is an agreeable and natural diversion." the treasurer-general wringing his hands in agonized appeal for money to fill an empty treasury, are only the more conspicuous figures adrift upon a sea of dismal anarchy. According to Sir Walter, it is not misrule, but the absolute disappearance of all or-der and coherent rule. "Government authority as well as tribal authority and organization, are in complete dis-

The sole industry that seems to thrive is the despoiling of caravans and the murder and robbery of chance travelers. Provincial governors after cornering the grain and then proceed-ing to collect the taxes of the district for their own particular benefit, without regard to the national treasury, are rebelled against and murdered by the starving populace, which embarks upon a perfect orgy of plunder and

Only the robbers, the cutthroats and the bandits would oppose an occupation by the two powers in question. Every Persian who owns any property, great or small, or all who derives nis existence from trade, industry or agriculture, yearns for the re-estau-lishment of authority, even if the latter be foreign, in order to give him some assurance of protection of life been looted as yet to any extent, so far as can be learned, is the wonder-ful collection of crown jewels at Teheran. Sir Edward Grey has repeated-ly recommended that they should be pledged for a foreign loan, declaring that England could lend no more that England could lend no more money without such collateral. What will eventually become of these jewels it is difficult to foretell. If they had already been stolen, as some people insist is the case, it is probable that they would ere this have come upon the market, if not in Europe and America, at any rate in the Orient, some of the gems having international celebrity. But unless England and Russia take steps to secure the jewels, in order to assure a future income for the boy Shah, and to reimburse them for some of their loans, which have served none but dishonest Persian statesmen and politicians, the collection is likely to disappear in some final coup by bandits tempted by the value of the loot.

The collection contains the finest engraved diamond in the world, engraved with the arms of England, It

There have for centuries past been in Europe not only male dowagers, but male dower houses, a fact to which it is worth while calling attention in these days when so many fathers on both sides of the Atlantic are relin-quishing in their old age their business interests, and even the possession of their fortune, in order to escape the terribly onerous taxation with which wealth is nowadays taxed on its inheritance.

Thus, in Scotland, where ancient tenures and old-time customs in connection with sanded property, survive to a greater degree than anywhere else in the United Kingdom, there are plenty of land owners where the proprietor, on reaching a certain advanced period of life, hands over the estates, the fortune and the family mansion, to his eldest son and heir, retiring to a small residence known as the dower house, with an income comparable in size to the jointure of a feminine dowager, and a charge on the revenues of the family property.

Both the late Mr. Gladstone and also Lord Rosebery made a study of this peculiar custom, and it is now being even still more widely adopted in Scotland for the purpose of avoiding the death duties. While the fairness of the practice towards the national exchequer may be questioned, there is

To Help Nature Shed a Bad Complextion

(From The Family Physician.)

Beauty devotees are enthusiastic over the beautifying qualities of mercolized wax. Perhaps nothing discovered within recent years accomplishes so much, so quickly, without harm, without detaining one indoors, and at such small expense. The principal reason for its wonderful merit is that it works in harmony with physiological laws. Instead of hiding, or "curing" complexion defects, it removes them. The wax actually takes off the aged, faded, sallow, freckled or blotchy cuticle, gently, gradually, causing ho inconvenience. It is Nature's way of renewing complexions. When the natural process is retarded because of deficient circulation or nerve tone, mercolized wax comes to the rescue and hastens the skin shedding. The new complexion which appears is a natural one, youthful healthy, exquisitely beautiful. If you've never tried mercolized wax, get an ounce of it at the drug store, use at night like cold cream, washing it off in the morning.

Another natural beautifying treatment—for wrinkled skin—is to bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is remarkably and instantaneously effective.—Advertisement. (From The Family Physician.)

Coleman was unmolested during the day, but a warrant charging him with assault was issued this evening, but has not been served, his whereabouts being

Coleman entered the courthouse and requested the Mayor to produce a search warrant used by officers raidwas not issued until after the raid had taken place. The Mayor with-drew from his office to that occupied by the chief of police, in order to comply with the request, Coleman following him.

As the chief produced the document, Coleman, it is alleged, declared that the warrant had been issued after he had made his charges against the posay anything," retorted Coleman, and as the chief tose from his seat protesting against the insinuation, Coleman struck him full in the face. The two grappled and two or three blows were passed before the others in the room threw themselves between the two men. Coleman sustained a slight abrasion upon the cheek, but the officer showed no signs of bad usage.

Coleman after washing himself in Coleman, after washing himself in another office in the courthouse, was allowed to leave without being summoned or bonded. Mayor Wooding has declined to sit on the case because he is related to Coleman. Police Justice C. P. Raine will preside at the trial.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Asheville, N. C., July 9.—This morning's session of the seventeenth annual convention of the North Carolina Bankers' Association was featured by addresses by James J. Britt, Third Assistant Postmaster-General under President Taft, and Dr. Bradford A. Knapp, special agent in charge of the farmers' co-operative construction work of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture. J. B. Blades, who represented the State organization at the meeting of the American Bankers' Association recently held at Detroit, gave a report of that convention.

Mr. Britt spoke on the feasibility of 1-cent letter postage, and declared that

Ar. Britt spoke on the feasibility of 1-cent letter postage, and declared that from his experience in the postal department he had loarned that the placing of 1-cent postage on letters is not only feasible, but desirable. He pre-partment he had learned that the placing of 1-cent postage on letters is not only feasible, but desirable. He predicted that the enactment of a statute by Congress reducing he postage on letters would result in the doubling of the number of letters mailed each year. He declared that this would make the postal department self-sustaining, and he stated that the people of the United States do not want the Post-Office Department to be a money-making scheme for the government.

Dr. Knapp declared that the bankers must conduct their business in such a manner that they will co-operate with the farmers. He pleaded for a reformation in the present system which will result in the cheapening of rates of interest, declaring that the farmer pays double the interest of the large corporations. He stated that no banker should make a loan to a farmer when he knows that the money is being sought to be invested in a losing proposition. The speaker referred to the fact that North Carolina is buying from other States farm products which should be produced within her own borders, and stated that this will continue until a better system for the loaning of money is adopted. He pleaded for colleges which will educate the young men of the country along agricultural lines and will make them realize that to be successful they do not have to leave the farm.

This afternoon the bankers drove through the Biltmore estate. They will elect officers to-morrow, and adjournment will be followed by a session of the agricultural conference, at which Senator Fletcher, of Florida, and Charles Hall Davis, of Virginia, will be among the prominent speakers.

WORKERS CONFER ON EDUCATION

Important Meeting in Connection With Program of Assembly at Montreat. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Montreat, N. C., July 9 .-- In addition to the features of the program, one of the most important special conferences of the season is to be held at Montreat this week. This is the conference in ing a negro's house on July 4, and the interest of education, and special which Coleman has openly charged interest and importance attaches to the same because of the fact that it is the first conference of the kind held especially in the interest of the cause of education in the Southern Presbyterian Church by order of the general assembly. The assembly at Atlanta, in May, recommended that "an ad interim committee, composed of the executive secretary of Christian Education and Minhad made his charges against the po-lice officers making the raid. Mr. Bell quickly replied that the document was in the officer's possession before they entered the dwelling. "Oh, you'd say anything," retorted Coleman, and as the chief tose from his seat procommendations, to the general assembly of 1914."

Complying with this direction from the assembly, the moderator appointed the following as members of the ad interim committee: Rev. Henry JL Sweets, D. D., of Louisville, secretary of Christian Educational and Ministerial Relief, chairman (or temperary chairman); J. I. Norris, Lynn H. Walker, F. H. Gaines, George H. Connelson, J. R. Dobyns, George H. Denny, D. S. Gage, W. B. Morrison, W. J. Martin, A. E. Spencer, William Dinwiddie, R. D. Vinson and Henry Louis Smith.

Most of the members of this committee, if not all of them, are expected to be at Montreat this week to take part on the program and to devise such means, by conference and otherwiso, as will arouse the membership of the church to a deeper appreciation and a more liberal support of the educational institutions of the church. During this conference plans will be devised also to carry out the recommendation of the assembly of this vest that will of the practice towards the national exchequer may be questioned, there is no doubt that it is entirely equitable as far as the family relations are concerned. For when a man survives to the age of ninety and beyond, it is manifestly unfair that his eldest son should have to wait until nearly seventy before obtaining possession of the family property.

Other male dowagers are those British commoners who have married percesses in their own right, possessed of entailed property, which, along with the peerage, goes on the lady's dearn to her eldest son, the latter's father remaining in the condition of a dowager.
